Telling Stories in ICT

Students from Primary to Secondary Two had the chance to tell a story using ICT tools. The mini project started off with experimental use of shapes and background tools with animation and transition effects including sound clips from audio files. Here are some interesting slides individual students have created in the process of exploring the use of ICT to tell a story.

The Tropical Rainforest

Observing and exploring the areas around the school has got the Nursery and Kindergarten children wondering what the area was like before the school was built. They thought about where did the insects and animals that have wandered into school, come from.

Through their own research, the children found out that possibly the school grounds was formerly an oil palm plantation and maybe even a forest before that! This led the children to investigate more about forests and the discovery of the Tropical Rainforests.

Through encyclopedias, information books, the Internet, stories and manipulation of materials, the children explored the four layers of the Rainforest: forest floor, understory, emergent and canopy. They also investigated the animals, birds and flora and fauna that inhabited the four layers which led them to learn and understand about the plight of endangered animals such as the Malayan tiger. The children were also very upset to discover that some species of their favorite animals were almost extinct! It was good to witness some children pledging to help save the animals! The children rounded up this project by completing personal Tropical Rainforest lap books.

Fun with Bahasa Malay

Bahasa Malay is a very critical component to the students learning at the Pegasus International School. It is compulsory for Malaysian students to take Bahasa Malay class. Our curriculum encourages the students to learn more about their own culture and or learn more about their host country's cultural traditions through language acquisition.

Students in Bahasa Malay class take part in a range of hands-on activities such as role play, games, debate, presentations, and watch movies instead of relying on text books alone. This is to ensure that the learning process is fun and enjoyable. These unique activities help students to remember and apply language concepts. Moreover, it will help them better in conversation, especially when speaking with Malay people.
